

Legal Disclaimer

No Legal Advice or Attorney-Client Relationship

The information contained in the Schnader Harrison Segal & Lewis LLP website ("Schnader website") is provided solely for informational purposes, and should not be construed as legal advice on any subject matter. Any information contained herein is not intended to be a substitute for legal counsel on any subject matter. The Schnader website is not an offer to represent you, nor is it intended to create an attorney-client relationship with you. No recipients of content from the Schnader website, clients or otherwise, should act or refrain from acting on the basis of the Schnader website without seeking the appropriate legal or other professional advice on the particular facts and circumstances at issue from an attorney licensed in the recipient's state.

Limitation of Liability

Your use of this website is at your own risk. The Firm is not responsible for any errors or omissions in the content of this site or for damages arising from the use or performance of this site under any circumstances. The Schnader website contains general information and may not reflect current legal developments, verdicts, or settlements. Schnader expressly disclaims all liability in respect to actions taken or not taken based on any or all of the contents of the Schnader website.

Confidentiality

Any information sent to Schnader, via Internet e-mail or through the Schnader website, is not secure and is sent on a non-confidential basis. The transmission of the Schnader website, in part or in whole, and/or communication with Schnader via Internet e-mail through the Schnader website does not constitute or create an attorney-client relationship between Schnader and any senders and/or any recipients. Please do not convey any confidential information to us until a formal attorney-client relationship has been otherwise established.

Links to Third-Party Resources

Schnader does not necessarily endorse, and is not responsible for, any third-party content that may be accessed through the Schnader website. The hypertext links herein are not under the control of Schnader. Schnader expressly disclaims all liability in respect to actions taken or not taken based on any or all of the contents of any third-party sites. These materials may be considered advertising in certain states.

Individual Opinions

Personal views or opinions expressed by individual attorneys or staff members of Schnader Harrison Segal & Lewis LLP are the views and opinions of those individuals, and are not to be taken as those of the entire firm, any of the firm's departments, practice groups or offices, or our clients. Schnader's attorneys and staff are required to specify and distinguish when they are speaking for the firm or a client, and when they are expressing their personal views or opinions.

Schnader has a proud history of support for open public discourse and respect for differing opinions as an essential component of democracy, good citizenship, and protection for individual rights and community well-being. We believe the legal profession can and should play a prominent role in the marketplace of ideas. Our firm supports the participation of attorneys in discussion of important public issues. We acknowledge occasional differences of opinion and welcome the exchange of viewpoints. In addition, Schnader proudly represents individuals and entities reflecting the full range and richness of ideas in the communities where we work and live, across the United States and around the world.

Miscellaneous

Schnader reserves the right to revise this Disclaimer at any time and for any reason and reserves the right to make changes at any time, without notice or obligation, to any of the information contained on this site. By entering this site you acknowledge and agree that you shall be bound by any such revisions. We suggest periodically visiting this page of the site to review these terms and conditions.