Osazenoriuwa Ebose is an associate in the firm's Litigation Department. She litigates a broad range of cases in state and federal courts. She has experience drafting pleadings, facilitating pre-trial discovery and document production, motion practice, and drafting dispositive motions. In addition, she serves as pro-bono counsel in prisoner civil rights cases in federal courts.

While in law school, she served as a judicial clinical intern to the Honorable Carol Sandra Moore Wells at the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. In this role, she was able to observe settlement conferences and various mediations, while also gaining drafting experience with habeas corpus petitions. She also interned at the Nationalities Service Center, where she conducted research for asylum cases, interviewed clients, and prepared immigrant visa applications.
